Hamburg, April 20. Letters from Breſlau the Capital of Sileſia, confirm the Advantage lately gain'd by the Swedes over the Poles, with the following Circumſtances. 6000 Poles drew together about the end of laſt Month, and march'd to attack 800 Swedes quarter'd in Petricow in the Palatinate of Siradia, which borders on Sileſia. They ſummon'd them to ſurrender at Diſcretion, which the Swedes refuſing, they attack'd them, but were repuls'd with the Loſs of near 200 Men. Whereupon the Poles withdrew a Mile and a half from Petricow, where they waited to be reinforc'd by 6000 Men that were on their March. The Swedes being advis'd of it, reſolv'd to prevent their Joyning. They march'd therefore in the Night with ſo much Diligence and Conduct, that an Hour before Day they enter'd into the Camp of the Poles who kept no Guard. 2000 of which were kill'd, wounded or taken, the reſt fled in Diſorder leaving a great Booty to the Swedes.
